

#24

L.A. It's Already Here!

"L.A. it's happening here," is merely an understatement. The expansion of the businesses and attractions of the twin cities is what is happening here and now. Throughout Lewiston and Auburn new areas have been opened and added to, enhancing our twin cities day by day.

We have recently received three new restaurants in Auburn, TGI Fridays, Long Horns, and Ruby Tuesdays. These restaurants have improved our already wide range of eateries that have been proudly established here. New stores such as Kohl's, Best Buy, and the numerous amounts of new businesses in the Auburn Mall have been making our shopping plazas even more alluring than before. The paramount of the whole idea is the abundance of jobs this expansion has provided for our hard working citizens.

On the entertainment aspect of our cities, a contemporary art piece has lit up the end of our well-known Riverwalk, the eye-catching Festival Plaza. This is a place for bands, choirs, and other forms of entertainment to express what they love, while we have another opportunity to do what we love, have fun. With the latest Gritty Mc Duff's right around the corner, Main Street is one of the many places to go if one is interested in local art. Gritty's has a public display of art for everyone to enjoy, whenever.

Andover College in Lewiston is another one of the beneficial additions to our community. The college offers another place for hard workers and is for everyone and anyone who wants to succeed in life and build a flourishing career. It is a place for buds to turn into full-bloomed, mature flowers. I will be one of those budding flowers next semester.

The expansion of the twin cities is so significant to all of us because it provides to people in our community with more of a variety of places to eat, shop, enjoy ourselves and explore our blooming cities. Economically, since our cities now are attracting more and more tourists every year they bring more income into our public works to help in bettering our community from roads and bridges to schools and recreation. The people who have interest and love for our community are those who are making wonders happen here. As we grow and grow we will become better and better until we are the best. That is what's happening here!

#24