

#6

L/A It's Happening Here

What's happening in the world effects all those living in it including those living right here in Lewiston and Auburn. The past few years have taken their toll on the country and the decay of the inner cities has become more apparent and demoralizing. It's not just what is happening here that is the problem but what causes those problems that affect what people do.

The people living right here in Lewiston and Auburn are helping to make the twin cities come to life and come out from the decay that has been polluted throughout Lewiston and Auburn. Those people that give their time, that make the sacrifice for others and for what's best make L/A the place to be. Citizens of Lewiston and Auburn go above and beyond what is necessary of them, and those qualities are passed from one generation to the next. Generation Y is the generation that will pick up where a\so many have left off and those incorporated within Generation Y make the twin cities a better place to live.

To have such people that will do something to help other people is such an existential and magnanimous way to make life in the twin cities a better place to live. It is not so apparent when walking down the streets of Lewiston or Auburn however there are times when you can see a generous hand outstretched to someone who could use a helping hand. There are groups and organizations working in and around the city to help make Lewiston and Auburn a better place to live but also extend that generosity far beyond the city limits.

Those people that take their time out to give back to the community for those that aren't as fortunate as the rest are the one's that make L/A a happening place to live. They make the twin cities a happening place to live by improving the conditions in which they live. What's happening here in Lewiston and Auburn goes without the recognition that is rightly deserved. The groups and organizations working to make the twin cities a better, safer, and cleaner place to live makes Lewiston and Auburn a happening place to be.

#6