I think that the most happening thing in the Lewiston/Auburn community is the one and only MAINEiacs. In Maine, hockey is a pretty popular sport since Canada is right above us. Last year when the MAINEiacs were doing really well, winning all the time and going after the championship that's what everyone would talk about. There would be posters and signs hung all throughout the community. You always hear about the MAINEiacs, it seems that everywhere there is someone always talking about them. A really good group of Hockey players coming to Maine to play hockey for us and to be representing us is such a good thing. Even though they haven't been here for a very long time, maybe a few years, I feel that they have grown into something people can enjoy and for some people, roll models. That is the ones who play hockey. Many times when I am talking to someone or hear someone talking they say "Last night at the MAINEiacs" or "I can't wait for the MAINEiacs". I feel that they have grown as a team since they first started and they have done a lot of work to get where they are and I feel that because of that they are the most "happening thing" in the Lewiston/Auburn community.
